It is my opinion that Microsoft has gotten away with another big one and I horrified at my government's legal team in giving-in to them. Microsoft blatantly broke the law with its monopolistic practices, in my opinion, and used unfair strong-arm tactics to force hardware makers to bundle their operating system. This is outrageous. What's more outrageous is the my government is letting Microsoft get away with it by a dainty slap on the hand. What does this do? It teaches our kids that it's ok to be a bully. Microsoft continues to push the legal boundary envelope and continues to get away with it.

Thank you.
